TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 14

THE BELLE OF HAVINA,-No happening for many a day has caused so much talk in Cuba as does the untimely taking off of Fanorita Ernestina Olivia, the belie of Havana. This lady was about 18 years of age Her beauty was of rare quality. She we the toast of all the gentlemen of the Greater Antilles. She lived with her parents in one of the handsomest houses in the city of Mavans, on the Prado, and was noted not only for her beauty, but for her sweetness and charm of manner and disposition. Senorita Ernestina Olivia was engaged to be married this spring to Don Einardo Libredo. A few evenings before the day set for the wedding the bride elect happened to be in the garden adjoining her father's house. Carelessly plucking a rese she put one of the petals in her mouth. It is presumed that an insect which had been feeding on some diseased meat was concealed in the petal and stung her lip, for a short time af-terward she complained of pain in her lip, which began to swell in an aluming man-ner. Physicians were summoned, but the poison could not be controll doreradicated, and after suffering great agony she died on the following morning.

All of the blooded Havances were at the maiden's burial. A gorgeous gala casco was drawn by eight horses decked with plumes. all coal black and covered with white netting, driven by eight pages in scarlet livery and two coachmen.

Following them came the family carriage draped with mourning and dacked with blazing torones, the funeral coach and in-numerable carrieges. All the bells of Esvana tolled, and fasers! guns sounded over the waters.

She Broke up the Party.

The Barrett Dramatic Society gave a reception at the residence of young Dr. Dudenhausen, Brooklyn, the other night. Everything went along smoothly until half-past eleven when Mrs. Daden hausen appeared. She does not live with the Doctor, they having quarrelled some time since. Doctor, they having quarrelled some time since.

Mrs. Dudenhausen told her husband what she thought of him, and in addition promised to make things lively when the guests came down staits to supper. The ladies and gentlemen crowded about Mre. Dudenhaus in, and the Doc or, after pleading with her to go away, sont to Captain Brennan to have her removed. Policemen Kraiz and Millmore responded, but Mrs. Dudenhausen politely insisting that she had a right there they had to go away. A little white af'r this the D tor and his wife left the house together. They had not goze far when they met a party of Mrs. Dudenhausen's friends. The wife borsted the husband and the friends took a hand in it. The Doctor says-some one struck him, but this is denied. At any rate, he began shouting "Murder" and "Police," and ran back toward his house, with the others in pursuit. The people who had attended the reception, and who were in full dress, gathered about him at the door and had a wordy battle with Mrs. Dudenhausen's friends. The neighbors, awakened by the tumult, stuck their heads out of the windows and me te remorks pleasant and otherwise. Mr. Dudenhausen decisred that Mrs. Dudenhausen had no claim on him, he having secur is divorce through Judge Culler. This Mrs. Dudenhausen denied, and her friends abused him for not supporting her and sporting around in a dress anit with society people. One of Mrs. Dudenhausen's friends went so far as to say that he was the owner of the dress suit the Doctor was then wearing. The parties finally tired of abusing each other and went home. The Doctor has kept very quiet since the rumpus eccurred.
